An Unusual Dilacerated Root Of A Second Maxillary Molar

Abstract

An unusual case of a second maxillary molar with a dilacerated root visible clinically is described. Apicectomy followed by retrograde amalgam filling was performed whereby gingival coverage and gingival seal was achieved.

Authors: Ngeow, W.C.

Journal: Journal of the Irish Dental Association

Year: 1996

Pages: 51-52

Keywords:

Adult; article; case report; congenital malformation; endodontics; female; human; maxilla; molar tooth; tooth malformation; tooth root; Apicoectomy; Humans; Molar; Retrograde Obturation; Tooth Abnormalities

Please cite as:

URL:

- http://www.scopus.com/inward/record.url?eid=2-s2.0-0030323316&partnerID=40&md5=f704aac3fdee112806ef5ca1e6682db7
- http://pubget.com/paper/9242118
- http://lib.bioinfo.pl/pmid:9242118